Reader's Opinions

I think I read half of it, just skimming through the rest. I didn't understand a lot but the five-factor model seems reasonable. Science, Technology, Economy, Politics, and Overall Culture all interlinked remain, as time goes by.

Freeman and Louca present an overview of technological progress, a process they describe through Kondratiev Waves, repeating cycles of economic development based on some fundamental technology and its offshoots. From water power and iron in Britain, to the modern computer revolution, these fundamental...
